prove to be a case of murder occurred here at about 9.45 last night.

As the result apparently of a row in a boarding house on Carroll street, John Singleton, a tailor, about 60 years old, lies dead and John Nutter, aged about 20, is detained by the authorities on suspicion of having caused his death. The inmates of the house are very reti-cent and decline to give any information until the arrival of the county solicitor, Thomas F. Clifford of Franklin, who has been notified and will be here in the

It appears that Singleton, who was of convivial habits, had been drinking and created a disturbance at the boarding house in which he and Nutter were in valved. So much noise did they make that the neighbors were aroused and some of them rushed into the house, and Singleton was found dead on the hallway floor with Nutter standing over him. The police were summoned and a physician was sent for; and on the arrival of the officers Nutter, who made no attiempt to escape, was held by the authori-ties pending further developments.
